Authors Note:

I wanted to make graphics and include information that would catch the eye of our specific target audience. Using vivid colors, yet still look classy for the social media pages to look very professional. The information I decided to include was to be very informative and motivational for that “women empowerment” feel. By including informational posts, as well as client testimonials, demonstrates effective results and informs women what they will be indulging in when they purchase the product. The hours I decided to add were very early in the morning. A specific target audience is busy, working women usually wake up really early and have little time to check their phones.

Putting “Good Morning” posts will help women feel happy and want to try the products. I also decided to post later on in the evening, which is when our stakeholders can calm down after a busy day and finally use their phone and be on social media. Strategically, I decided to make my captions small and concise with only the important information being shown. Since my sub-audience are working women, they will not have enough time to read a long caption and will either skip the post, or it will be difficult for them to find the key reasons on why they should purchase the product.

Making posts at 1:00 pm was also a good idea since that is when working women will usually have their lunch break and be checking their phones. This will ensure that they see the content posted and be able to have time to read the information to be able to purchase the product. Adding call to action in the captions such as “Buy Now!” and “Become a part of our family!” will increase product sales.

The green color as the base for all the posts is another way to show “healthy” colors and keep a pattern throughout all the posts and increase engagement for young professionals. It is really important to have a theme going on throughout all social media to ensure good brand imaging and look more professional. Color psychology influences brand perception and demonstrates to stakeholders transparency and awareness coming from the brand.

I used the caption for the two “Good Morning” posts that will be uploaded to Facebook and Twitter, to have a pattern within the posts since they are both about waking up energized and powerful. I added #ChewFit to every post to boost the hashtag and be seen throughout more users. Alternating between #HealthyLiving and #MorningMotivation within its designated posts to help flow the description. By adding hashtags, posts have a better engagement in social media and boost being seen by users that do not follow the account yet. My posts are clear and concise and will gain users attention and boostings.
